Leadership through Collaboration
Dear Friends,

The first few months of 2019 have been eventful to say the least! We have added 4 new members to our team across the state and launched new programming to further our mission and serve more children, youth, and young adults statewide.

As May quickly approaches, our whole team is gearing up to host and participate in Children’s Mental Health Awareness Day (CMHAD) activities, campaigns, and community events in all 3 Grand Regions of the state. Part of the celebrations will include our very first fundraising event in Knoxville – Paint the Town Green! This night of fun will feature tacos, tequila tastings and a chance to really engage with our friends in East Tennessee in the work we do to support children’s mental health. We are incredibly grateful to Chivo Taqueria and Village Behavioral Health for their platinum sponsorship of this event.

Celebrations aside, I’m constantly reminded of how dedicated our staff teams are who work with young people and families in their communities every day. I can confidently say our team goes above and beyond to meet families enrolled in services where they are. Recently, I learned about a family that we were serving in rural TN that had extreme barriers to accessing the care they needed. It literally took my breath away when I heard about the great lengths my staff were willing to go to meet the family’s needs. It’s this kind of dedication that makes TVC such a unique and committed organization.

Sincerely,

From chairing our very first Green Ribbon Gala in 2016, Board Member in 2017, President-Elect in 2018, and currently 2019/2020 President, Patrick has been an anchor in our success. Previous board president, Bill Kirby, honored Patrick with TVC’s 2017 President’s Award for his outstanding level of involvement with TVC events, fundraising, and growth.

In his free time, he enjoys playing on his community kickball team in Germantown, and spending time on the lake with his partner, Chad James.

We are confident that Patrick’s leadership and guidance will continue to shape a successful future for TVC.
In early March, Tennessee Voices for Children (TVC) staff were able to travel to Tampa, FL to attend the 32nd Annual Research & Policy Conference of Child, Adolescent and Young Adult Behavioral Health – also known as the “Tampa Conference”. This opportunity aims to encourage researchers, evaluators, policymakers, those running family organizations, as well as community and family groups interested in, and stimulated to, creatively solve the issues facing the country’s most challenged children and their families. At this year’s conference, TVC staff attended a variety of sessions that were part of specialty tracks including Behavioral Health Equity, Child Welfare, Evidence-Based Practice in Systems of Care, Family Engagement, Institute for Transitional Research Education in Adolescent Drug Abuse, Innovations in Wraparound, and Youth and Young Adults.

In partnership with the Tennessee Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services (TDMHSAS), TVC staff presented Enhancing Young Adult Leadership and Parent Leadership Abilities at the conference poster session. This presentation focused on how a two-day Peer Leadership Academy hosted by TVC and TDMHSAS successfully empowered young adults and Family Support Specialists (FSS) by strengthening leadership and advocacy skills. The poster displayed the positive outcomes reported by the Peer Leadership Academy’s attendees and highlighted the historical strides to foster the value of peer support made by the state of Tennessee.
Children’s Advocacy Days

On March 12th and 13th, TVC staff and board members were honored to be surrounded by over 600 individuals interested in children and family issues at the 2019 Children’s Advocacy Days (CAD). This year’s theme focused on ideas worth sharing and was kicked off by opening remarks from Governor Bill Lee and Tennessee’s First Lady, Maria Lee.

TVC strongly believes in making sure the voices of Tennessee’s children and families are heard at the state level. We are very grateful for Governor Lee’s push to prioritize behavioral health as part of the state's legislative agenda. Through his proposed budget, Tennesseans have the potential to see an additional $15 million allocated towards mental health treatment and suicide prevention initiatives.

“As the President of the TVC Board of Directors I find it important to witness and be a part of Children’s Advocacy Days in TN. It was an honor to meet those individuals within our organization that make an impact on the youth and families across our state we serve on a daily basis. The sharing of best practices, the opportunity to network with their peers, & the ability to get in front of lawmakers who can effect changes to our laws in a face to face setting was truly inspiring.” -Patrick Sims, President, TVC Board of Directors

Behavioral Health Day on Capitol Hill

On March 20th, TVC staff, board members, and interns gathered with mental health advocates from across the state to participate in Behavioral Health Day on the Hill at the War Memorial Auditorium in Nashville, TN. This annual event focuses on the importance of mental health and this year’s theme was making mental health a priority in the state of Tennessee.

Ben Harrington, Chairman of the Tennessee Coalition for Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services, presented the opening remarks, and was followed by Governor Bill Lee and Commissioner Marie Williams from the Tennessee Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse Services. Attendees were encouraged to visit their legislators to discuss important issues regarding mental health.
On March 19th – 22nd, several members of Tennessee Voices for Children’s Management Team participated in the National Council for Behavioral Health’s Middle Management Academy (MMA).

The Middle Management Academy is the only program of its kind for future health care leaders. It has graduated more than 2,000 managers to the leadership fast track and has earned the appreciation of participants, as well as their CEOs. As management is a hands-on, brain-engaged activity, so was the training. Our program managers were prepared to learn by doing, collaborating, networking, and exploring what works.

The Middle Management Academy gives managers the skills they need to manage work and people, but it also connects them to the bigger vision of their organizations.

They become stronger links in the management chain and are able to help improve productivity by motivating staff, communicating effectively, and fulfilling their role as influential front-line leaders.

TVC staff left with a better sense of their own personal leadership styles and those of their peers.

“…that the Middle Management Academy provided an opportunity to learn about my own personality/management along with the learning experience of interacting with behavioral health middle management colleagues from across the country.” - Paul Highfill

“It was interesting to be surrounded by Program Managers and Supervisors from Behavioral Health agencies from all over the country and discuss many of the similarities in successes and challenges that we are all facing in middle management. I found the most informative day to be the discussion around personality styles after taking the Myers-Briggs. It gave me insight in not only myself, but in those I work with, and how to successful navigate these differences.” - Kimberly Fyke-Vance

"No person in the United States shall, on the grounds of race, color or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefit of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving federal financial assistance."

TVC Introduces New Programs to Serve More Families

Tennessee Voices for Children (TVC) is excited to launch new services through the Juvenile Justice Reform (JJR) and School-Based Behavioral Health Liaison programs.

About Juvenile Justice Reform (JJR)

This program is a collaborative effort to divert families from further court and DCS involvement between Tennessee Voices for Children, the Tennessee Department of Mental Health and Substance Abuse, and the Montgomery, Robertson and Sumner County Juvenile Courts. The JJR program is a strength-based and family-driven program that supports children, youth and families involved in the Juvenile Justice system. JJR will use an evidence-based model Trauma Affect Regulation: Guide For Education & Therapy (TARGET). We are thrilled to introduce this service model to youth involved in juvenile justice services in Tennessee.

TVC was awarded a federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration grant for a Statewide Family Network that will respond to children, youth, and young adults with SED and their families in NE TN Appalachian area. The grant provides funds for a three-year period to develop a model for replication in other rural areas by increasing the capacity to implement, expand, and improve effective family-driven mental health services with respect to their culture, traditions, and beliefs.

Program Goals

Goal 1: Develop a strong network of family and organizational leaders with management capacity that reflects the culture, traditions, and beliefs of NE TN and replicate in other rural areas.

Goal 2: Increase family and organization partnerships and collaboration within and across the system with policy makers and service providers that will result in responsive support to the needs of children and youth with SED and ensure their participation and input into state and local mental health services planning and policy development.

Goal 3: Reduce stigma, bias, and superstition of mental illness and associated services that interfere with the utilization of networks of services and supports to families and their children.

Goal 4: Increase family capacity to access mental health services and utilize supports in their community making informed decisions on behalf of their children and youth within rural areas.

Goals Address Four Areas of Need

Leadership: Address inconsistent and weak leadership across the NE TN and rural TN through a stronger network of family and organizational leaders with management capacity that reflects the culture, traditions, and beliefs of the target population.

Partnership/collaboration: Align with the need for enhanced opportunities and stronger partnerships and collaboration within and across the system with policy makers and service providers.

Stigma reduction: Focus on the stigma and superstitions from culture, traditions, and beliefs encountered by rural TN families and their children and will facilitate more inclusive approaches to service delivery and family support.

Access: Address the need for navigation skills for families to ensure they can access necessary services across the system of care and make informed decisions on behalf of their children and youth through improved access and support.
